

Welcome to India

India is a large country in South Asia. It extends into the Indian Ocean.

India is known for many landmarks including the Taj Mahal, the Ganges River and the many beautiful temples throughout the country.

Indian men often wear a dhoti, fabric wrapped around the waist and then between the legs and tucked into the waist. Women often wear sari, cloth that is wrapped around the waist and then over one shoulder.

Diwali marks the Hindu New Year. It's the largest celebration in India. Many people create Rangoli; colorful designs on the floor near the door to their home to welcome guests.

Match the pairs of Rangoli and circle the one that doesn't match

Welcome to India

India is a large country in South Asia. It extends into the Indian Ocean.

India is known for many landmarks including the Taj Mahal, the Ganges River and the many beautiful temples throughout the country.

Indian men often wear a dhoti, fabric wrapped around the waist and then between the legs and tucked into the waist. Women often wear sari, cloth that is wrapped around the waist and then over one shoulder.

Diwali marks the Hindu New Year. It's the largest celebration in India. Many people create Rangoli; colorful designs on the floor near the door to their home to welcome guests.

Match the pairs of Rangoli and circle the one that doesn't match

